

XM is clearer than the local stations, and the rhetoric sounds like the old lines used against Satellite TV by the primary networks. Why is it always the competition that complains, not the consumer? It would be nice just once that the Liberals would open their minds to the whole not some small part, but maybe they aren't capable?

We like XM for the following reasons;

- * Clear away from the city when traveling
- * Can listen to the same station away from home
- * Can listen to the news, or comedy, or country, etc, when I want, not when someones thinks I should !
- * The music or talk is clearer than the network stations
- * We don't have to listen to advertizements
-  We don't want to listen to advertizements
